Join The Family Support Council

Are you a family member of a past or present participant of the Family Support Services Program (FSSP)? Are you interested in supporting youth with disabilities and their families? Rocky Mountain Human Services is recruiting community members for its Family Support Council.

The Family Support Council provides guidance to RMHS on the overall implementation and direction of FSSP. This program offers supports and services to families in Denver and Adams Counties caring for a child between the ages of 3-18 with an intellectual and developmental disability (I/DD) or delay.

The Family Support Council Advises on:

- Guiding decisions on how funding is allocated to best support families in the program
- Monitoring the services provided by FSSP
- Recommending supports for families transitioning out of the program
- Supporting the Family Survey for Quality Assurance, which guides FSSP's direction in the next year

Why Join the Family Support Council?

- Advocate for the I/DD community
- Discuss real issues facing the I/DD community with RMHS leadership
- Leverage your lived caregiving experience to be part of the decision-making process

Meets quarterly on Thursdays from noon - 1 pm

Eligibility Information:

- Council members must be family members of past or present FSSP participants
- Council members must reside in the counties of Denver or Adams
